SUMMARY

When he immigrated to Newfoundland in 1910 from Great Britain, Samuel L. Greenspond had little idea that his beloved Cricket game would catch on in his new adopted home. With the help of some new friends which he made when he arrived in Newfoundland, they started to arrange some Sunday afternoon Cricket Matches. Before long many local boys became interested in the game and by 1919, he had succeeded in establishing and organizing a four team Cricket League in St. John's.
